VOL. 40.-NO. 276.

ST. LOUIS, TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 16, 1889.

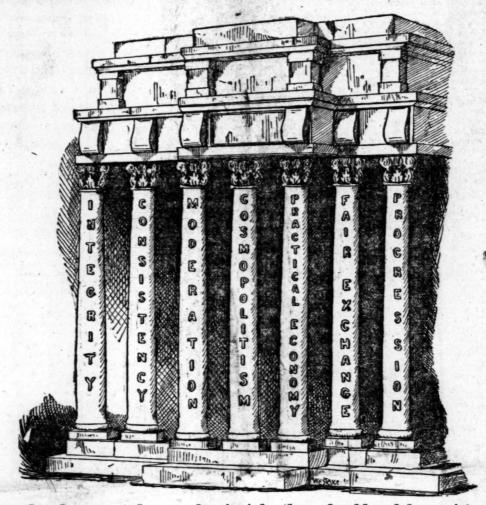

With the renewal of nature and the renewal of another season's trade it is not inappropriate that an old-establi. house like THE GREAT BROADWAY BAZAAR, one that has grown up WITH the people, one that has grown up CAUSE of the people, should renew its promises to those who still make it what it is -- the STORE OF THE PEOPLE, and no structure either great or small can exist without supporting pillars, THE GREAT BROADWAY BAZAAR takes pleas in presenting to the people a view of those upon which depends its existence, so that you who look for a fulfillment promises will know upon what you have to rely.

COSMOPOLITISM-Our central pillar upholds the great mercantile structure by "virtue of freedom from national prejudices or attachments." There is no line of demarcation at Crawford's between Jew or Gentile, citizen or alien, rich or poor, sect or "set." All are welcome, and there is room enough in this big store for all to be served fairly and honestly under the broad pennant of the banner of EQUAL RIGHTS.

MODERATION still stands firmly as one of OUR pioneer principles, one of OUR first-constructed columns. Twenty-three years ago CRAW-FORD dared to start a business on the small-profit system, dared to open the way for hundreds to follow, and dared it at a crisis in mercantile history when to make such an innovation on established usages meant to stand alone. To-day the column of Moderation is as firmly imbedded in the foundations of the Great Broadway Bazaar as is the Egyptian Sphinx in the sands of the Libyan Desert, and now as ever will CRAWFORD'S purchase for cash the merchantable treasures of the world at the closest margins and sell on the narrowest limit of profit, because it is willing to grow steadily and surely WITH the people, not OFF of the people.

PRACTICAL ECONOMY-It is easy to theorize on this subject and keep a credit account, but you can't help coming out behind when the monthly bills are rendered. CASH buying, like a Cash basis of trade, is the only real Practical Economy that has ever yet been evolved out of the great problem of Ways-and-Means-to-save-while-spending, and Cash Buying will live as the survival of the fittest ages after the moss of Old-Fogyism hangs drearily dripping from dead-and-gone Credit.

INTEGRITY-A great mercantile establishment is simply an agency for the mass of the people. There must be an uprightness in mutual dealings or the column of Integrity will sway like the Leaning Tower of Pisa. Therefore, if we promise a yard, we must, "noblesse oblige," give you 36 inches; if a mistake is made tell us about it, and give us a chance to be fair to ourselves. When we savertise a thing we have it, and if you will come early enough you vill get it. The system of cutting prices necessitates great sacrifices on the part of the merchant; many times his goods are an absolute loss. If the public realized this more they would not be as extreme in demands as they often are, and having on certain reduced goods received double value for the amount expended, they would not still expect double value on every other purchase. "Measure for measure" is an honest policy; accept $1.00's worth for $1.00 at general times, appreciating the losses the merchant stands when he gives you whole dollars for halves on particular occasions.

CONSISTENCY-One price rules at CRAWFORD'S, and one line of policy as to bargains—a universality of bargains all over the house. No one department acts as a catch-penny bait for the others. If Silks reduce so do Dress Goods, and from a Card of Buttons to a Baby Carriage you will find that each department has its own special inducements to keep trade stirring and repay you for your patronage.

PROGRESSION-Crawford's keeps up with the procession and never fails to indorse modern enterprise. Show a new way that is better than the old and you will find the Great Broadway Bazaar in the front ranks, holding up the torchlight of advancement. Crawford's buys at first hands, sends to England, France, Scotland, Ireland, and all over America's manufacturing centers for the goods the people demand, never failing to remember that the closer the goods are bought the less necessity there is for big profits, and the better they will suit the pocketbooks of customers. CRAWFORD'S has its own electric-light plant, its own tailoring, its own dressmaking, its OWN EVERYTHING, in short, that tends to make a great and independent concern.

FAIR EXCHANGE-The last column in the group of seven stands no less firmly than the other six. Every cent spent at CRAWFORD'S brings to the spender a full value return, because where no credit i given no losses are incurred, and the cash buyer has no extra taxatic because another buyer's accounts are uncollectable. The purchaser small amounts is waited upon as if he were the purchaser of tenfo the quantity, and no discrimination is allowed between rich or poor,

On such pillars of support it is worthy that a grand structure has been erected, on such principles there should and does exist a future of limitless possibilities. CRAWFORD'S RENAISSANCE is no new adoption of principles, it is only a renewal of old principles tested and proven by the wear and tear of TWENTY-THREE YEARS.

soemed to be in terribic mental agony and shifted his feet and hands incessantly. When asked to confirm the statement that he was Smith he answered: "The officers say I am Smith and they must prove it. I think the best thing I can do under the circumstances is to keep quiet and take my medicine. If I am Smith they must prove me guilty of the crime charged and I will serve my time in the penitentiary like a man. I am young, only 27 at the present time, and if I am a criminal I have years to blot out the stain on my name. This mental agony is killing me by inches and I wish it was over. Chief O'Neil was just down to see me and I told him I should make no resistance, but would go to St. Paul with any officer at any time and submit myself to an examination. I have no friends, and what is the use of making any fuss about the matter? If anything criminal can be proven against me no effort on my part could impede the course of the law. But this mental strain is simply awful."

In the course of the questioning the prisoner at various times virtually admitted his identity, interrogations referring to Smith being answered by him in the first person. It having been noted that inhis business papers under the firm name of Cowen & Cowen he had used the name of John W. Norton Smith was asked what connection Norton had with his operations. "None whatever." he replied. "The name of John W. Norton of St. Louis, who I have since learned, is menager of one of the opera-houses, is not known to me, and the name has absolutely no significance in my business operations. These latter operations were to widely advortise my business in order to obtain a partner who could put some money into it. I had the necessary experience, but was financially Cramped."

When first arrested Smith seemed disposed to deny his true identity, stating that he

When first arrested Smith seemed disposed to deny his true identity, stating that he knew Smith and accounting for the presence of the criminating letters and circulars advertising the flight of Smith by professing to be an ameteur detective. He said at that time: "I knew Smith, having methim in Kansas City. I wanted that $500 reward and I came on to St. Louis in Smith's company. Itis gave me the slip soon after running into the Union Depot here and I have not seen him since." Later he refused to talk of this later piece of business and ened to the Four Courts this morning to see him.

A VISIT TO HIS QUARTERS.
Shortly after noon Smith told the officers that he was rooming near Twenty-second and Chestnut streets, and a visit in which he led the way to his room confirmed the statement. A satchel was found containing a number of mortgages and other legal documents conveying land and other properties in Sedgwick County, Kan., from Abram Allen to William P. Cowan. These documents are believed to be forgeries, but the matter has not yet been investigated. The prisoner has told soveral conflicting stories to-day, and the St. Louis officers are busy fastening a case on him should he prove not to be Smith. No decision has been reached regarding the time when he will be sent to St. Paul.

Mary Clancy's Death at the City Hospital to Be Investigated.

On Saturday, February 9, a woman giving the name of Mary Clancy, her age as 51 years, her residence as 1220 North Seventh street, and her occupation as a servant, was admitted to the City Hospital. An examination revealed the fact that she was suffering from a fracture the fact that she was suffering from a fracture of the left leg. The patient stated shortly after her admission that she had received her injuries by failing into a scuttle-hole in the sidewalk, but she soon became irrational and no positive information could be obtained. She died at the hospital at 2:45 p. m. yeaterday, her death being due to the shock and injuries received. A full investigation will be made into the case and the Coroner's inquest will probably be deferred until to-morrow.

Kellar was threatened with immediate death if he uttered a cry or stirred. Another farmer named Jacob Reiff was fleeced out of $10,000 worth of railroad bonds, but recovered them from a self-styled New York "detective" on the payment of $4,000. The bunko men also tried to swindle Josiah Thomas, a stock tender on the Lehigh Canal, but he had had experience, and the men drove rapidly away.

Discussion of Wild Fancies on 'Change-His Estate.

Beyond discussion of fancy tales that have been printed since the sucide of John Jackson that event had little place on 'change to day. There was no 'doubt tha was no the St. Louis Elevator Co. had been severely burnt in its speculations, and as little doubt that their very heavy losses was the cause of that suicide. The statement that the loss was only $50,000 was generally accepted as only partially true. The direct loss of the company in the present deal is about that, but other losses are attributed the management by persons who profess to know something of the inside.

Knowing something of the inside transactions dependant upon or relating to Mr. Jackson's business is an exceedingly difficult thing for any but directly interested persons. What John Jackson's estate will amount to when it is settied is a matter for speculation. Elopement of a Providence Heire With a Poor Student.

Providence aristocracy, an heiress, with $250, 000 in her own name and millions in prospec tive, has eloped with the son of a mechanic, and the Providence "four hundred" are dazed with the knowledge that the richest eligible youths were cut out by one whose claims to social prominence were too small to be considered. Mr. George McLeod, a Brown University student, is the fortunate youth and Miss Fredora King is the bride. On Friday night last they procured a license, drove to the house of the Congregational minister in East Providence, and in a few minutes they were married. Then they started on an extensive wedding journey, leaving no word as to when they should return for forgivenness. It is a love match. Miss King is granddaughter of the late Deacon King, the millionaire, and daughter of Fred King. Providence is noted for pretty girls, and Miss King was considered one of the handsomest in the town. She is as accomplished as she is beautiful, and she was always surrounded with admirers, many of whom have wealth and prominence in politics and business. McLeod, like all the other students, was smitten by the voung lady's beauty and grace, but he was not considered a dangerous rival by those who were bent on securing her hand and fortune. The King mansion is near the college, and Miss King had a host of callers nearly every evening. She had apparently no particular choice among her many suitors. McLeod is a popular student, and a studious fellow, and was supposed to be too much wedded to his books to pay any attention to Cupid's assaults. But Miss King told her bosom friend that she was adesperately in love with the dignified student, and that they were betrothed. The elopement pian was spontaneous, and the suggestion of a quiet marriage in the East Providence rectory was no sooner made than adopted. In a handsome street costume the young lady departed from her home, and in one brief hour the affair was over.

McLeod's father is a machinist at the works of the Corliss Engine Co. The young man is just 21. His bride is a triffe older than he is.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH NEW YORK, April 16 .- At a meeting of the Republican Club last night the members and their guests were addressed by Capt. Zalinski, United States Navy, upon the subject of "Coast and Harbor Defenses, and the Application thereto of the Pneumatic Gun." Zalinski, aided by stereopticon views, gave a clear and effective history of the Zalinski pneumatic guu, illustrating its development from a 2-inch projector to its present 15-inch form. From this point to a description of time new dynamite cruiser Vesuvius was but a step. The description of this remarkable yessel aroused great interest, many questions being asked concerning her. One of these questions elicited the fact that seven pneumatic guns will soon be placed in New York Harbor—three at Sandy Hook, two at Ft. Schuyler, and two at Ft. Wadsworth. They will be capable of carrying the 500-pound charge over a mile, and will cost $200,000. views, gave a clear and effective history

Up to 10:30 o'clock this morning the expected raid on the telegraph poles, and wires had not begun by the Department of Public Works. Commissioner D. Lowber Smith of that department, at that hour, said that he had not received any word from the Mayor to begin the work, and he would take no steps until he had heard from his honoth as soon as instructions arrive the work will begin.

Shortly after 10 o'clock this morning Mayor Grant's Secretary received a certified copy of Judge Wallace's order dissolving the linunction procured by the Wessern Union Telegraph Co. against the Mayor and the Board of Electrical Control. The order was sent shortly atterwards to the Department of Public Works. One of the Inspectors was on hand with a corps of axe men, expecting the war signal. Before 11 o'clock the poles at Fourteenth street and Union Square were being cut down. Hundreds of people gathered in no time to witness the movel sight of men cutting down telegraph poles. Two gangs, one on each side of the street, attacked the poles. Another company of strong-armed woodchoppers made an attack on the poles at Sixth avenue. They commenced on both sides of the avenue at Twenty-third street and intend leveling all poles on the avenue as far as Fifty-eighth street.

The Mayor sent to the Commissioner of Public Works to-day a letter notifying him of the poles and wires that were to come down. They were as follows: On Sixth avenue, from Twenty-third street to Fifty-eighth street, except Western Union wires on the Elevated road structure; on Broadway, from Fourteenth street to Forty-fifth street, except Western Union wires on the Broadway, and on Forty-second street, from Sixth avenue to Broadway, and on Forty-second street, from Sixth avenue to Broadway, and on Forty-second street, from Sixth avenue to Broadway, and on Forty-second street, from Sixth avenue, the said of Broadway have alr company say that they have not heard of the reported movement among the men on the Western Divisions, and while some say that they do not like the insurance plan of the company, others say that they are not opposed to it, and will not do any such rash thing as to go into a strike against it. It is known that many of the men are opposed to the company assessing their wages for insurance. While not forced to join the Relief Association, it is said that they are generally given to upderstand by the foreman and older employes that it will improve their interests with the company to be members of it. The idea orginated with John W. Garrett, and when first put into execution caused a bitter feeling among the men. At the request of labor organizations and without any opposition from the Baitimore & Ohio Co., the last Legislature repealed the charrer of the Baitimore & Ohio Railroad Relief Association in Maryland. The association then asked for one year's time to close out the concern which was granted. The Relief Association is now operated as a department of the Baitimore & Ohio Co. under its general act of incorporation, but the officials elaim that there is no compulsion rbout it.

THE DEFICIT.

Goschen's defict is exactly £2,000,000. His budgett was as uneventful as I predicted, but there is a significant tendency towards progressive taxation in his imposing an extra duty of I per cent on fortunes above £10,000. Goschen represents the extreme antisocialistic school, but is becoming a socialistic school, but is becoming a socialist in spite of himself. There were some ourlous social studies in his speech. He attributes the decline in the revenue from wine to the habit of smoking digarette immediately after dinner, and the increase in the use of cocoa to its being advertised better than coffee, and the want of the usual increase in tea to the growing popularity of Indian teas, which draw much stronger than the Chinese.

He stated that he accepted the Presidency with reluctance because he feared that he would not be able to accomplish what could reasonably be expected of the festival this year, but he had been agreeably surprised, in that the work had been taken up by the schools, and that the labors of the official board were comparatively light.

The various committees reported that all but a comparatively few of the schools in their districts had decided to attend the May festival. As some of them expressed it, 'You can not keep our school away.' The total number of schools reported last night was 188, and at least shie hundred and fifty of that number have decided to attend, leaving but thirty-eight schools of the number reported to decide later. A report from the special committees was then called for. A. C. Stewart, from Committee on Programme, reported all was progressing finely with his committee. The Finance Committee reported that the ground had been secured, and A. P. Ridder telephoned over that the committee was well up with its work. The committee was well up and the committee was the second of least year.

The principal report of the evening, and one of the most interest to those, present was that received from D. R. Wolfe, as Chairman of the Committee on Transportation, who induced Capt. McCullough, Superintendent of the principal street car lines running to the Fair Grounds, to state that the street cars would make a uniform rate of one child's ticket, good for transportation to and from Fair Grounds, provided the bearer wore the badge of some Sunday-school.

As considerable trouble was occasioned last year by not having definite arrangements of transportation the committee was highly gratified at the report of the Captain, and gave him a vote of thanks. THERE is talk of a movement in the House of Delegates looking to the unseating of Delegate Julius Lehman. KERENS has just returned from Washington, and while the machine may be oiled it may not run his way.

THE United States Commissioners to the Samoan conference at Berlin are on their way to Germany with their instructions. The outline of the instructions published in the Post-Dispatch show that Secretary BLAINE adheres closely to the policy framed by Secretary BAYARD. It is conservative and is far removed from the fingoism of which Mr. BLAINE is supposed to be the chief exponent. The chief point insisted upon is the autonomy of the native Government. It is insistence in the carrying out of the policy rather than the policy itself that will prove the strength of the Administration.

BECAUSE President HARRISON remarked that he would look to the Senators and Representatives of the different States for advice with regard to appointments the strange notion seems to possess these gentlemen that they have an absolute right of consultation and even of dictation in these matters. The President has raised several storms because he made appointments regardless of congressional advice. Perhaps the President may yet have to show the Congressmen that the distribution of the patronage of his office is his own right and duty and he may or may not as he chooses ask advice of others Slate-breaking may become a necessity

The Masons have thus far taken no decisive action concerning the parade, as a law of the order prohibits participation in any demonstrations save such as are distinctly Masonic. However, the matter has been referred to James P. In that event members of other lodges will join with George Washington Lodge.

One of the features of the parade will be a labor division, for which many assemblies of the Knights of Labor and many trades unions have already been pledged. The latest additions to this division is the Journeymen Stone Cutters' Association. A committee of this organization, consisting of John Slattery, Wm. Reynolds, Pan Enig, Aug. THE SUGAR TRUST.

Practically Smashed but Its Soul Still

NEW YORK, April 16 .- The Sugar Trust is gone to smash, but its soul is still on earth under new conditions. This information is given upon the authority of a gentleman who knows exactly what he is talking about, but whose name is withheld from publication a his particular request. On February 16, 1888, by a resolution of the State 1888, by a resolution of the State Senate, the Senate Committee on General Laws began an invostigation relative to trusts and Gen. Roger A. Pryor was appointed counsel to this committee, more generally known as the "Ives Committee." Long and tedious examinations and investigations followed and suit was brought at the instance of the committee against the North River Sugar Refining Co., one of the corporations forming part of the Sugar Trust, on the ground that the company referred to had violated and therefore forfeited its charter by joining the trust.

therefore forfeited its charter by joining the trust.

Judge Barrett, after careful consideration of Gen. Pryor's arguments, decided that the North River Sugar Refining Co. had violated its charter by joining the trust and a receiver for the company was appointed. The victory caused the trust to tremble and look for some means of dodging the law, for it was apparent that similar action could be successfully taken against the other corporations forming the Sugar Refining Co. (as the sugar trust is officially known).

Suit was recently brought against the American Sugar Refining Co. at San Francisco, in the name of the people and upon the same allegations that were urged by Gen. Pryor in the action against the North River Sugar Refining Co., and then it was discovered that the American Sugar Refining Co. had assigned to Theodore Havemayer, Henry O. Havemeyer and Charles H. Sneff. Under these circumstances, of course, the case of the people. In San Francisco must full through meyer and Charles H. Sneff. Under these circumstances, of course, the case of the people in San Francisco must fall through for having no property, by reason of the assignment, a receiver cannot be appointed and the company will possibly be run quietly by the two Havemeyers and Mr. Sneff. The people of this State have an action pending against the Havemeyers and Elder Co, and the case was to have been tried in May, but dispair at the fate of the North River Sugar Refining Co, and in view of the fact that the American Sugar Refining Co. has assigned for obvious reasons, practically to the Havemyers personally, the assertion that all the corporations in the trust have also assigned, possibly to the same people, as the gers personally, the assertion that all the corporations in the trust have also assigned, possibly to the same people, as the American Sugar Refining Co., and thus nope to escape prosecution, seems to be founded on fact. The success of the action against the North River Sugar Refining Co. was based on the fact that the action was brought against that concern as a corporation, but the result might not be the same if action were brought against Messrs. Theodore A. Havemeyer, Henry O. Havemeyer and Charles H. Sneff, for instance, as individuals. Naturally, the gentlemen representing trust interests had nothing to say when questioned yesterday as to the truth or untruth contained in the statements made about the sugar trusts, but it was admitted that a great change had taken place among the corporations forming the Sugar Refining Co. At the headquarters of the trust, No. 112 Wall street, a very lively day's business was done. Throughout the afternoon clerks and others were rushing in and out exchanging old certificates for new ones, but the amiable Trensurer, Mr. John E. Searles, would not even make any comment upon the curious disclosures made in San Francisco at the trial of the suit against the American Sigar Refining Co.

He has succeeded also in which revives with startling realism the scenes of the French revolution. The play pulsates with the fervor, the passions, senti-ments, emotions and ambitions of the time. It glows with intensity. One cannot help quivering with aroused sympathy for the of the composition. It is purely objective. There is little or no subjective development of character, motives or emotions. The method of treatment is the opposite of the analytical. There is no time to analyze feelings or construct character by delicate touches. The characters are put an the stage already made and they simply act as they are stirred by powerful impulse and passions. One is placed at once in the very thick and heat of the furious storm which swept France and is carried irresistibly to the fall of the curtain. There is the uncompromising pride, courage and contempt of the canalle which actuated the nobility who had come through rears of undisturbed tyranny to look upon themselves as God-chosen rulers; there is the lowing sentiment of awakened patriotism in the breast of the intellect and the bone and sinew of young France, the dashing courage, the romantic heroism and lofty aspirations of men who breathed the atmosphere of freedom and saw the bitter injustice of class distinction for the first time; there is the ominous roar of thousands of passionate voices which have found long-suppressed utterance, the blind fury, century-cherished hate, revenge and thirst for blood of the 'sans culotte' drunk with the wine of license. All of these things are in the atmosphere made by the play. That they are and that the pulses thrill with the emotions of the stage is proof of Mackaye s power. The play is without subtility of analysis or delicacy of artistic development, but it has vigor, dash, thrill power in broad lines. It is a picturesque stirring melodrama, which reproduces admirably the scenes and emotions of the revolution. It is thoroughly effective.

The skill of the author is shown chiefly in the fact that the high key on which the action of the drama is pitched is maintained without faltering and the merit of the company is hate, revenge and thirst for blood of the

the fact that the high key on which the action of the drama is pitched is maintained without faltering and the merit of the company is proved by the ability to execute the full purpose of the author. Of course, woven into the incidents of the revolution is a story.

The chief figures in the center of the dark background are Paul Kauvar, a young revolutionist, and Diane de Beaumont, the daughter of a proud Duke. Kauvar and Diane are secretly married. Diane's hand is sought by a villian, the Marquis de Yaux, who has joined the revolutionary party. Under the guise of friendship for Kauvar he executes a scheme by which he is made to appear as the betrayer of the Duke. Kauvar, to prove his honor, takes the Duke's place in the procession to the guillotine and escapes. He pear as the betrayer of the Duke. Kauvar, to prove his honor, takes the Duke's place in the procession to the guillotine and escapes. He appears at the head of a storming party at La Vendee and is enabled to save his wife from his viliainous friend, and to save the viliainous friend, and to save the viliainous friend, and to save the relatives of his royalist friends from the rabble. There are other interesting personages, such as Delaroche, the Royalist General, Carroc, a leader of the Anarchists. There is scarcely a particle of comedy in the play, only a strained attempt at it, but furld and somber as are the pictures, the love story is full of romantic interest and the close of the play is bright. One remarkable feature of the drama is that with its sember and bloody background the blood is mainly suggested, as the only death among the stage personages is that of the villain Marquis, who dies by his own hand.

The fine effectiveness of the play is due in large measure to the performance of the company. Joseph Haworth is known to St. Louisans only in melodrama. His work in "Hoodman Blind" was admirable. His work in "Paul Kauvar" is superb. He has the enthusiasm, the fine fervor and dash requisite for the delineation of romantic heroism. He has the intensity required for powerful dramatic effect. He is full of fire and sympathetic magnetism. He catches the French spirit of high courage and enthusiastic devotion with spleudid intelligence. He can be gentle, tender, brave and heroic. This puts ar. Haworth in the lead of romantic actors. Another admirable piece of work is the Diane de Beaumont of Carrie Turner. She is artistic, graceful and reaches a high point of emotional intensity. Her work is a strong companion piece to that of Haworth. Both of them have made unqualified hits, but the entire company is evenly strong. Ralph Delimore as the Marquis, O. H. Vandenhoff as the Duke, Nestor Lennon ha Gen. Delaroche and Edward Hurd as Carroc are deserving of especial praise for intelligent effort while Luzzle Rechelle as Nanette, Marion Abbott as Scarlotte, Edward Beed as Col. La Hague and Murry Woods as Rodolph Potta are capable.

The enthusiasm with whigh the performance is received at the Olympio le worth seeing.

A play on totally different lines from "Pan A play on totally different lines from "Pati Kauvar" is at the Grand Opera-house. Perhaps two more striking contrasts could not be placed in conjunction. While one is intense, vigorous, essentially dramatic, with the plot and the action as the main parts, the other is quiet, easy, and depends for its ef-fects on character sketches and natural hold them against him. He deserted to the Allen camp early in the campaign and is charged with complicity in an election day trading scheme. The Noonan men now say they will knock Tom Wand far out of the political that he will never again appear. Until within a few days of the last election there was prospect of Wand being re-elected to ular tickets were secured. Then Mr. Allenberg, who is not a politician, hunted up Central Committeeman Wicke and demanded of him an explanation of the presence of the Twelfth Ward ballots which were costing the regular Republican a great many Republican votes. Wicke had placed the irregular ballots at the polling places. He said he knew nothing about it. They were the tickets that had been sent to his house the night before the election from Ford Smith's office where the Executive Committee of the Republican City Committee held its sessions. Allenberg was not disposed to accept the explanation and asked why the regular tickets. Republican City Committee held its sessions. Allenberg was not disposed to accept the explanation and asked why the regular ticrets were not put on the boards at the polis. Wicke said Allenberg could go and get them. If he wanted them.

Later in the day a Republican ticket was discovered on which the line for the House of Delegates was left blank. This was further proof to the minds of Allenberg's friends that a scheme had been arranged to slaughter him.

Noonan's friends claim that after the exposure of this scheme Wand's men traded off Noonan votes for Butler, receiving Allenberg votes for Wand in return. They charge that forty-five men were employed at the polls of this one ward at $5 each to secure Wand's election. Wand denies all these charges. He says that the Hilgeman tickets reached the Sixteenth Ward polls through mistake, and says that he nor his friends made no trades. As he can't persuade Noonan's friend to accept this explanation Wand will get the worst of it under the new administration.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATOR.

New YORK, April 16.—David Wolf and Wm.

Gross are painfully alike, with most of the pain on Wolf's side. Wolf is 5 feet 4 inches high; so is Gross. Wolf weighs 125 pounds; so does Gross. Wolf is a handsome blonds; a curling blonde mustache; Gross' manly beauty is likewise augmented. Wolf's taste for wearing apparel is quiet and elegant; the same is true of Gross. Wolf is-no, was - in the cattle business; so also is-no, was-Gross, Wolf is an honest young man of 24. Gross is a dishonest young man of 24. In all things each of these young men is a perfect double of the other. As much alike as the two Dro-mos are Wolf and Gross. Had this similarity not existed Wolf would not to-day be serving a term of six years and ix months behind the bars at Sing Sing. There is every reason to believe his innocence of the crime charged against him, and big hearted friends are making efforts to set aside the sentence. The crime of his double put him where he is, and fession of that same double wil doubtless fling back the bolts which keep him in.

THE STORY. The Grand-jury found an indictment against David Wolf, November 28, 1888, for forgery.

Miss Minnie Force will arrive next week from Georgia to visit her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Houston T. Force, on West Morgan at reet. He was charged with forging a check upon the Mount Morris Bank for $58.72, which was purchase of beef. The difference, $23.62, was handed the young man who made the purchase, in cash. An attempt to deliver the goods at the address given by the purchaser resulted in the discovery that there was no such place, and Mr. Jesus found in the last two works. nted to Wm. C. Jesup, a West Washingwas no such place, and Mr. Jesup found himself in possession of a forged check. David Wolf was arrested and in a police court pleaded not guilty. He entered the same plea when arraigned before Judge Martine in the Court of General Sessions January 11 last. However, he was convicted, two witnesses, employes of Jesup, positively identicheck, and, as has been said, he is now serving the sentence then imposed. At this juncture Wm. Gross comes upon the scene. It is as well to state first that Gross is an assumed name. This young man is the son of one of the most prominent cattle dealers in New York and Brooklyn and every effort to hide his identity has been made. The efforts of the elder "Gross," who under his own name is quite well known socially, resulted in serious business disaster and almost financial wreck, but he has at last recovered. Young Gross was indicted for larceny in the second degree on the charge of obtaining money and goods under faise pretenses in Washington Market by passing a check on the Columbia Bank, purporting to have been signed by one Martin Daly, and made to the order of Jacob Strauss and one Oppenheimer, by whom it was apparently indorsed. Gross was brought to trial, and on the evidence adduced he was convicted, it appearing that Martin Daly, whose name appeared as maker of the check, had no account with the Columbia Bank.

Anthe same time young Gross was charged with forgery with respect to a check given to E. M. Gattie, a Harlem jeweler, for 5196 in payment for two diamond ear rings. To the first indictment Gross pleaded guilty; the section has not been tried. Several similar forgeries were committed about the same time. Both young men were brought together face to face, it being believed they were accomplices, and their similarity was noted. Gross swore he had never seen Wolf before face to face, it being believed they were accomplices, and their similarity was noted. Gross swore he had never seen Wolf before face to face, it being believed they were accomplices, and their similarity was noted. Gross swore he had never seen Wolf before face to face, it being believed they were accomplices, and their similarity was noted. Gross swore he had never seen to have been spending the winter with her parents, first and they will move into it in the course of a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Garesche's new home at Jenning check, and, as has been said, he is now serving the sentence then imposed. At this juncmira, Gross, who seems to have several particles of manhood still left in him, has confessed that it was he and he alone who committed the forgery for which poor Wolf is serving sentence. He has acknowledged, too, the entire number of similar crimes committed about this time, having decided to make a full confession, no matter what the penalty. His motives for the commission of these forgeries are said to lie in the fact that he was engaged to be married to one of the handsomest and brightest belies of a neighboring State. Woman-like, us soon as his fiance heard of her lover's trouble, she, accompanied by his own faithful sister, flew to his side and gave him all the succor that her money and presence could give until he was sentenced. Her pleading eyes watched judge and jury alike till the trial was ended. It was even said that the diamonds bought of Gattle were intended for her ears

THE CONFESSION OF YOUNG GROSS than he ever had before. As an instance of the striking resemblance between the two men, Gross was met by one of the witnesses who swore to the identity of Wolf a day after he (Wolf) had received his sentence and only a day or two before Gross' own arrest. Walking up to him, the witness said "Hello, Wolf, how did you get out; I thought you went up?" "Excuse me, sir,' said Gross, for it was he, "my name is not Wolf and I have not been sent up. You are mistaken. Then he walked rapidly away leaving the witness dumfounded.

The plumbing inspectorship seems to be a matter upon which the members of the Board of Public Improvements do not exactly agree. There are six applicants for the position, T. J. Hennessy, Jas. Gallagher, D. T. Turner, Chas. G., Hamsworth, Eugene L. Harrington and Julius Moulton. The first thing the board did was to decide that none of the applicants would answer the requirements. Then Col. Flad, who makes the applicantent, suggested that the best man for the place would be an architect and not a plumber. This was supposed to be in opposition to the sense of the ordinance. A copy was produced which was found to read: "The President of the Board of Public Improvements shall, with the approval of the Mayor, appoint a supervisor of plumbing and experience competent to design and execute plumbing work."
This the Colonic claimed did not specify a plumber, but might mean an architect just as well. The matter was not decided, but a committee consisting of the Sewer, Street and Water Commissioners was appointed to make arrangements for putting the provisions of the ordinance into operation. The 12 o'clock meeting was for a letting of a portion of the work on the new water works conduit.

Mayor Noonan will in a few days send to some of the principal architectural papers in the East advertisements calling for plans for the new City Hall. STRIKING CARPENTERS DISSATISFIED AND WANT TO GO TO WORK.

nise Plan Proposed at the Meeting This Morning-Only $1,000 Received for Distribution Among 1,500 Men-What the Journeymen Painters Are Doing-The

When the striking carpenters were called to order by W. H. Kliver in Central Turner Hall at 10 o'clock this morning, the reporters who up to this time have been present at every meeting were requested to leave. This action was hardly necessary as they knew what was going to transpire during their absence. It is known that a number of men went to work Monday morning for posses who had agreed to give 40 cents ar hour. They had been out two weeks and could stand it no longer. It set a bad example to the others, and this, con-nected with the fact that only $1,000 Mrs. Wm. H. Jennings and her youngest daughter, Miss Viola Jennings, who have been spending the winter with the family of her brother, Gen. Gano, and daughter, Mrs. Florence Cruther, will return to St. Louis in shout two weeks.

Among the Executive Committee ling, Webster & Co., is still shrouded in mystery. No good motive for his action has yet been spending the winter with the family of the Brotherhood for distribution among they. No good motive for his action has yet been furnished, although many theories as to was thought not less than $5,000 would be sent, and $5,000 was expected. Not many applied the reasons reported was one plied for assistance up to last Saturday night, and the greater part of those who did applied which, Sunday.

THE $1,000 RECEIVED vesterday, together with the donations of the Cigar-makers' Union and $500 from outside parties, whose names cannot be learned, and a donation of meat for twenty families for two weeks by the Butchers' Union, would have been sufficient to keep up the strike a month longer. The trouble with carpenters a month longer. The trouble with carpenters is that they receive such small pay and work only seven months a year; this hardly allows them to save enough to go out on a prolonged strike. The leaders saw they could not hold the men much longer and the next best thing to do was to declare a boycott against the master builders who would not sign and go to work for those who did. A vote was taken on this which was about equally divided between remaining on a strike and going to work. It was finally decided to await the action of the Master builders, who have signed, as a mass-meeting has been called for them at the Central Turner Hall to-night.

AN ATTEMPT WILL BE MADE to organize an association of the willing master builders, and if such is formed it is said to be the intention of the strikers to boycott all who do not belong to this new association. There are many members of the present Master Builders' Association who favor the strikers and may leave to join the new association. The meeting adjourned to meet again at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, when the strike will be declared off on a compromise or continued.

THE JOURNEYMEN PAINTERS' UNION will be declared off on a compromise or continued.

INTE JOURNEYMEN PAINTERS' UNION is going along quietly, but rapidly, and the strike, if such it can be called, bids fair to end with the week. The journeyman are not really out on a strike. They are meeting everyday in a most orderly and gentlemanly way at the Apollo Theater on Fourth street, and organizing more perfectly. They are also waiting until all the master painters or the majority of them sign a contract for a year not to flay "less" than $2.50 a day to any union journeyman painter in their employ. The Master Painters' Association adopted a resolution not long ago to not pay "more" than $2, cents an hour. This does not state how mitch less, and many have taken advantage of it and paid less. The association has called a special meeting of its members for this afternoon late, when some action will be taken on the strike. In the meantime the journeymen are receiving many signatures from their former bosses willing to pay the demand.

It is said of the sale advertised for the 24th nstant, that the property is the largest block of business improvements ever before offered at a single auction. The holding of the late French Baroness comprises the six stores at the southeast corner of Third and Washington avenue and the two great warehouses (J. G. Threatening Letter Was Not the Cause of T. R. Reynolds' Disappearance. The disappearance of Mr. Thomas R. Reynolds, the lessee of the abstract office of Sterobtained some circulation, and which obtained some circulation, and which, if true, would certainly furnish a sufficient motive. This was that Mr. Reynolds wps-hn debt to Mr. John D. Ford of 3122 Lucas avenue and that on the morning of his disappearance he had received a letter from Mrs. Davies, a daughter of Mr. Ford, stating that her father wanted the money which he owed him and had threatened to kill him unless it was paid.

To ascertain if there was any foundation for this report a POST-DISFATOH reporter called at Mr. Ford's residence, 3122 Lucas avenue, and saw Mrs. Davies and also her mother, Mrs. Ford. Mrs. Davies denied the truth of the rumor that she had sent such a letter. When asked if Mr. Reynolds was indebted to Mr. Ford, Mrs. Ford said that if he was it was a private matter which did not concern the public. Mrs. Davies said that the Reynolds family and theirs had been intimately acquainted for a number of years, Mr. Reynolds having come from the same place that they did in Kentucky. They knew him to be a most industrious, upright and bonorable man, and the only way in which she could account for his disappearance was on the supposition that he did not have enough money to carry on his business, in which he took no little pride.

Mr. Thos. R. Reynolds, Jr., a son of the missing gentleman, was seen to-day and said that he understood his father did owe Mr. Ford some money, but had settled with him on the Saturday previous to his disappearance. that he understood his father did owe Mr. Ford some money, but had settled with him on the Saturday previous to his disappearance. Mr. Ford had never pressed his father unduly for the money and he placed no credence in the report that a threatening letter had been sent to his father on the day he disappeared. The family had received no tidings of him since the day he left.

The City Election-Dr. Abbott's Sermo Items of Interest.

This city is in the throes of a hotly contested city election. Hon. H. G. McPike, who is the present Mayor, is a candidate for re-election Iwo years ago he was nominated by the Republican party and elected against a straight emocrat. The new steam motors for the Middletown street car lines will be put into operation about the lat of May.

General Manager Fisher of the Bluff Line was in this city yesterday and assured the POST-DISPATCH reporter that there is no truth in the report published in a St. Louis daily morning paper that the Illinois Central Railroad is negotiating for the purchase of the Bluff Line. He further stated that his road is doing business on its own account, and that no other road is behind it. posed by a faction of the Republican party,

A Daring Robbery.

By Telegraph to the Post-Disparcil. BONHAM, Tex., April 16 .- The report of daring robbery comes from the western por tion of the county. Thieves went to the house of a farmer named Pendleton during the night and stole two valuable horses from him, and then, not being satisfied with the extent of the damage rendered him by the theft, they mounted the horses and deliber-ately rode up and down the wire fence, cut-ting it to pieces. They then quietly rode away, and nothing has been heard of them since.

EMIL HOLDERLE. Inquest on the Young Man Who Killed

Holderle died at his home about 2 p. m. yesterday, and was never conscious from the time he inflicted the wound to the time when he died of its effects. Peter Holderle, a brother of the deceased, testified that the deceased was 27 years old, single and a plumber by occupation. The sweetheart of the deceased gave evidence as published in the Post-Dispatch yesterday. The gril seemed much affected at the painful position in which she is placed and her testimony shows clearly her affection for her mad lover. A verdict of suicide by gunshot in right temple was rendered.

wanted a final stakeholder decided upon before he put up his money. He proposed George Engeman and Phil Dwyer. He even offered to take R. K. Fox, when his nominations were objected to. Stevenson wanted Dave Blanchard, the well-known Boston sporting man. Boss McLaughlin of Brooklyn was another proposition. It began to look as if the fight would split on the final stakeholder rock. But, no, Mr. Kelly of Kelly & Bliss fame, seemed to be a well-received suggestion. Then came Al Cridge's name. As it was believed that Mr. Kelly would refuse to act Mr. Cridge of Cridge & Murray was acceptable to both sides.

A sigh of relief came from the crowd at this moment and there was some applause, but perhaps it was because some one opened a window. Then the Sullivan party wanted the belt put up as a part of the stakes. Mr. Fox's representative said that thirty days before the battle was the time it was usual to deposit the beit, and made out a written promise to do this, which he handed to Mr. Coivin, Charley Johnston then gave Mr. Colvin $5000 in fitty one-hundred-dollar bills. The fight, which is for $10,000 a side and the beit, will take place near New Orleans on July 8. If a throng came to see John L. It was full twenty minutes before he and his friends could get settled in their cab and be whirled up Leonard street by the club man's bays.

In alluding to the sale of Morrill to placate Kelly, he said it was unwise. Kelly, he said, by virtue of his liquor business, was not the man to inspire confidence in the public. He, the speaker, did not believe in allowing base ball players to be owners of or interested in drinking places for reasons that must be obvious to everybody; and he intended at the next meeting of the League to offer an order or resolution preventing any player from being interested in a drinking place. In fact he had already served notice on the Boston management that he intended to do so, and they could readily understand what he meant by that.

By Monday noon they wer selling at 75 cents and $1.

One of the members of the club in speaking of their reception there yesterday said: "We thought it would be a nice thing to stop over at Bloomington, as it shortened the journey somewhat, and the Board of Educati seemed so anxious to have us there, we left the management of the affair to them, and I assure you they did manage it. They worked the town up to such a pitch of enthusiasm that it was difficult to obtain tickets on the day o the concert. No seats were reserved, and when the doors were opened there was the most amusing scramble for seats I ever saw. The boys were a little disconcerted during the concert by the presence of a large number of the Bloomington belles, who had been given choice places on

C. B. Mitcheli, manager of the club, in speaking of athletics generally at Princeton, said: "We are in remarkably fine shape this year, as far as athletics are concerned; our lacrosse team is acknowledged the best in the country and to it is due much of the increased popularity of the game. In base ball we have undoubtedly the best nine Princeton ever put on the field. You can judge of its quality from the fact that they best the New Yorks a good game only a short time ago, and have made short work of a good many of the lesser profession al nines in the East. In field athletics we have a number of good men who promise now to take down a good many championships. Our 46 yard man has captured besides the American championships the champion ships of England and Ireland. Take us all around, we are way up in athletics. Of course, none of us can say now that we will win the base ball championship, how the hope that we will, and base our hopes on the excellent work the club is doing now."
